About Me

Resourceful and results-driven software developer with a solid foundation in backend architecture, application logic, and web system design. I bring a methodical approach to problem-solving and thrive in environments that balance functionality with user experience. My experience spans technical development, service logistics, and small business operations, with a strong emphasis on coordination, decision-making, and client engagement. I'm passionate about learning through hands-on implementation and constantly refining my craft. Whether building web applications or managing event services, I approach every challenge with persistence, creativity, and a keen eye for detail
